

Cineri - The Remnant Empire

"These lands may no longer be held by living hands but the grip is just as resolute. For the bearer of this crown and all that follow, I swear from this moment till my last, the horsemen will take no more. I have sacrificed too much."
- The Ivory Duke on his return to Saustri.

"Tradition!? A joke in quite poor taste, the seat of the Emperor has a vote, as does a undead man, and now a Coin-Lord. Yet we, we who have suffered the Southern Raiders, we who defend without turning to the occult, we are granted no privilege."
- Duke of Denbur beseeching Maxil IV for Elector status.

"Weapons at the gates, this is our city, and by Erebur himself if I could nullify magic within these walls I would."
- Mayor of Urember, the city of the hilted pen to the Brigand Bale during the War of the Bookkeepers.

"I care not how they got here. Sick in mind or body, weak in constitution or soul, we turn away no one. There is no exception, there is no equivocation, this city is for them."
- Second Priest Altmae to the Trisi refugees fleeing an unknown conflict.